recognized with the “Behavioral matter of the year – Americas”
award by Global Competition Review (GCR)*

We are pleased to announce that our antitrust practice, led by Fernando Carreño, received the award for “Behavioral matter of the year – Americas”, given by the prestigious publication Global Competition Review (GCR).

This is the first time that a Mexican firm is recognized with this award and the second year in a row that our antitrust practice is awarded by Global Competition Review. This recognition is granted by GCR to the firms that prove to have a “creative, strategic and innovative work carried out before an enforcer in the Americas.”

We express our gratitude to our clients and friends for entrusting us with their most relevant and sophisticated matters. It is an honor and a privilege to work with you.

Sincerely,

Von Wobeser & Sierra, S.C.
